Angelamajestic.com

Angelamajestic.com would be a portfolio website to showcase Angela Majestic's personal and professional projects.

My website would showcase all the work I've done during my four years at Michigan State University. It would highlight my computer science skills, which is my major, and also my game design skills, which is my cognate. Ideally, my website would be an equal blend of my coding-centric projects and my design-focused projects, such as the UI designs I've done for my game classes.

Personas

Hiring Manager: Experienced professional looking to see if I have the skills necessary to fulfill the needs of their company.

Freelance Client: A client looking to see what services I offer and if my skills and design aesthetic match what they are looking for.
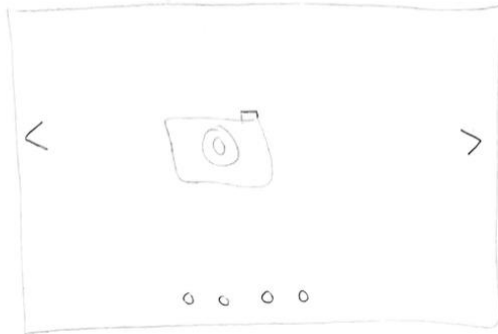

Comps

http://www.rleonardi.com/ - Showcases both his design and video game development skills.

https://tobiasahlin.com/ - Effectively shows both his design and coding projects.

WORK

Thoughts:

- Navigation bar with three pages (website will start on the home page)
- I want a nice bold header with my name. I looked at a lot of different portfolio websites, and I think they look really clean when they have this
    - The background of the header will probably be a drawing I've done
    - The background of the header will set the color scheme for the entire website
- Portfolio of my work
    - Slideshow of images of my work
        - I think slideshow would be best so that the screen isn't taken up entirely by images
    - Blurb of what the work is and what I did on it

ABOUT ME

Thoughts:

- About Me page will highlight both my programming and artistic skills
- Blurb about my skills to the left
  - Bullet point list of programming languages I know
- Photo of myself to the right
- Grid of some of my artwork that didn't make it on my Home page

Resume

Thoughts:

- Probably use some of the code from the card lab
- Links to some other websites that also showcase my work
- Button to download my resume
  - Or maybe that should be on About Me page?
